Allen also doubts that the contemplated mission of approximately fifty men would find suitable Yugoslav working counterparts. He favors, therefore, the establishment of a nucleus of a mission, consisting of possibly ten or fifteen men, within the staff of the present US service attaches to carry out normal MAAG functions. If this proposal is adopted, Allen intends to explain to Tito that the group must have direct access to Yugoslav staff organs rather than having to deal with the Yugoslav foreign liaison unit, which is the case for attaches.

Comment: The Defense Department has proposed a military mission of at least fifty men to handle the US arms aid program for Yugoslavia. Chief of Staff Popovic recommended, during his recent visit to the US, that the staff of US service attaches in Belgrade be expanded to handle the aid program.
